

Did you see it?

The Dome Home on Pensacola Beach was featured on the Travel Channel series "Amazing Vacation Homes" during an episode titled "Coastal Homes" broadcast on Mon., Sept. 13 and again on the National Geographic Special "Hurricane Summer."

The amazing homes series, hosted by Tom Jourden, highlights both bizarre and luxurious architecture of vacation homes across the country.

The Dome Home is a monolithic home built with airform concrete, weighs close to 800 tons, and has many unique features to withstand strong winds, storm surge, fires, and earthquakes while saving on energy costs as well.

For the National Geographic special, a camera crew stayed within the dome during Hurricane Ivan, and documented the storm.

For more information about the Dome Home, visit www.domeofahome.com. By the way, it did survive!